Superintendent of Schools
WILLIAM A. EARLY

MEET OUR SUPERINTENDENT

For our superintendent of schools, William Ashby Early, the year 1949-50 is not an anniversary but his first year of service in the Arlington schools. His amazing energy, efficiency, and general goodwill have quickly won for him a respected place in our community.

Superintendent Early came to Arlington from a similar position in the Norfolk schools. His family name is a familiar and respected one in Virginia history. He is a graduate of Randolph-Macon Academy, Emory and Henry College, and Duke University. His professional leadership is recognized outside of Arlington for he is immediate past president of the National Association of County School Superintendents and is now president of the Virginia Education Association.

First Row: Dr. Curtis E. Tuthill, Mrs. Edmund D. Campbell (Chairman), Dr. Barnard Joy.

IF THESE BE FOR US

Many of the recent improvements in our school plant and in our program reflect the keen interest and wise planning of the Arlington School Board. From the "new look" of our auditorium to the new type of diploma we receive on Commencement Day, its helpful influence can be traced.

The Arlington School Board has earned a reputation for hard work and sound achievement. Its present members are Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell, Chairman, E. R. Draheim, Barnard Joy, Colin MacPherson, and Curtis E. Tuthill. Until his term expired in January, O. Glenn Stahl was also a member of our official family. With the leadership and support of such a Board, continued progress and achievement at Washington-Lee is assured.

Dear Seniors:

First of all I want to thank you for this space in your annual and the opportunity to write all of you a letter at one time. I hope each of you will have a feeling that this letter is addressed to you. I, as well as your parents and teachers, am proud of you. All the records including this annual, the special record of your senior year, prove that we are justified in feeling that you are a source of our hope in the years to follow. We believe that while you were here you learned to do by doing and you learned to live by living.

As you go out from Washington-Lee you will become more seriously involved in this business of "living and let live." How important this becomes to all of us who love life when we stop to realize that so much has been done in recent years to develop and construct new means of destruction. Down through the ages from clubs and sling shots to atom bombs and hydrogen bombs, men have busied themselves in finding more efficient ways to destroy. Just as man's misuse of his knowledge has brought about this present and potential destruction, so man's right use of his knowledge will strengthen his chances of being creative.

As I say farewell, I want you to know that I believe that you, with the knowledge you have acquired here and the respect you have for your fellowman, are well prepared and willing to live at peace with all of our neighbors in this one world of ours.

Yours sincerely,

CLAUDE M. RICHMOND

OFFICE STAFF

Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, Miss Charlene Orndorff, Mrs. Iris Dean, Mrs. Doris Orndorff, Mrs. Ruth Watkins.

Principal

CLAUDE M. RICHMOND

Vice-Principals

HELEN K. FINLAY, B. McCLAIN COCHRAN

In cooperation with the Guidance Department and the Principal, the Vice-Principals tried to help students in adjusting themselves to the school's customs.

As typists, receptionists, and general office workers, the Office Staff performed invaluable services to the school. They kept monthly reports, took charge of permanent records, and sent out transcripts to the colleges. It was their duty to meet and direct those visiting the school. In the office they kept a student directory and a list of schedules by homerooms for the use of the school.

ALWAYS ON THE JOB ...

Any member of the Kitchen Staff was a welcome sight to hungry students and teachers alike as they filed into the cafeteria first, second, or third lunch periods. Expertly prepared hot plates, sandwiches, salads and desserts were always ready and waiting. With the help of recently purchased equipment, quick and efficient service kept everyone satisfied.

The Health Department attempted to discover and help students having physical defects. Through discussion of their problems and corrective treatments many students benefited. An infirmary was open during the day where students could go and rest. Cuts and bruises were carefully treated whenever necessary.

As custodians of the school, the Janitorial Staff played a vital role in keeping the classrooms clean and comfortable. They patiently unlocked doors for early students and locked doors for cautious teachers. Students often found newly polished floors after the holidays and a warm building to greet them on winter mornings. Janitors willingly kept the school in order for games, plays, and parties.

BARBI SIEVERS

ONCE IN A LIFETIME . . .

The Class of 1950 finally received their Senior privilege cards for which they'd waited so long, and they found themselves on top of the world as far as being a Senior was concerned. They even presented the first play of the year, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," and it was a success. There was a Senior Party in November and the traditional Senior Prom June 12th.

But somehow the pleasures of a senior couldn't last forever—after graduation, comes the beginning of a job, or entering college as a freshman.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

The Senior Class hit a high peak of entertainment with their performance of

"SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE"

by George M. Cohan

Mystery, force, and intrigue, sprinkled liberally with good acting, led to a successful production. The plot of a writer, who went to a mountain inn for new ideas and found more than he bargained for, kept the audience guessing, "Who had the seventh key?"

Dick McCombs makes a dramatic entrance after discovering the body.

NEXT IN LINE . . .

As "the Senior Class to be" the Junior Class outdid themselves all year. They went so far as to issue Junior cards which could be used for admittance to their class parties. They successfully entertained the Senior Class at the Junior-Senior Prom with a good orchestra and beautiful decorations. They received praise for their excellent presentation of "Arsenic and Old Lace." Their enrollment surpassed that of any previous Junior Class.

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY

Grease paint, hard work, and the inexhaustible enthusiasm of the Junior Class united to produce a hilarious success of the three-act comedy, "Arsenic and Old Lace," by Joseph Kesselring. The play was produced under the skillful direction of Mr. B. F. Bray.

The odd antics of the two old-maid aunts, who had the rather strange habit of poisoning their boarders, kept the play moving at a quick pace. A high point in the play came when the audience was introduced to all twelve of the aunts' victims in a surprise curtain call.

The plot thickens

WHERE DO WE STAND? . . .

The Sophomores were given quite a reception when they entered the halls of Washington-Lee. A well planned orientation program was presented through Inter-Club Council. The whole class met as a group in the auditorium where they were introduced to their sponsor, the principal, and the officers of Student Government. Then they were sent to their junior high homerooms and registered. The next day they were assigned to new homerooms. Inter-Club Council members visited the individual homerooms and spoke on various phases of high school life.

Through parties and classroom acquaintances the members of the Sophomore Class soon became accustomed to the atmosphere of a large school. They forgot their prejudices toward students from "other junior high schools" and united to form the Class of 1952.

As a promoter of school spirit and coordinator of club activities, Inter-Club Council was organized last spring as the result of a Procon Club discussion. With elected representatives from every club in the school, it did a great deal this year to advertise activities sponsored by the school's clubs. In addition, it advertised a talent scout show given for the benefit of a Boys' Club in Arlington.

During the fall, members spoke to the incoming Sophomores about the activities offered them at school, and urged that they share in the progress of their school.

In keeping with the theme of the year, Inter-Club Council presented a twenty-fifth anniversary assembly in which outstanding graduates of the past years were featured.

After a sweeping victory over her opponents in the spring elections, Pat Frankhouser began to prove that one should "never underestimate the powers of a woman." During the summer, Student Government officers prepared handbooks which were given to students when school started. Student Association membership cards, commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary, were issued. They sold ads for football programs and were in charge of the sale of programs at the games. The most extensive campaign for school spirit ever carried on at W-L resulted from the many pep rallies before the games. A 300 car train to the G.W. football game was sponsored by Student Government.

Before Christmas the entire student body was asked to sell Christmas trees for the benefit of the rowing team. At the same time the Alumni Dance proved to be a great success.

The Council managed Jim Gibbon's "Country Store" for a day and were proud to announce that Washington-Lee had brought in the most canned goods!

The respected trophy cases were kept neat and clean by Student Council. The broken trophies were repaired.

The year was ended by a decorative and spirited campaign for the election of the new officers.

As the Washington-Lee chapter of the National Honor Society, Kalagethos functioned as a service organization. At the end of last year, a board of teachers appointed by the principal chose its members on the basis of their character, scholarship, leadership and service. As members of this year's Senior Class they strove to carry out the high standards expected of them as members of the Society.

One of the Society's most useful projects was their assistance in the presentation of College Night. Each member was assigned a college representative whom he introduced and helped in any way possible. They sent an article on College Night to Student Life.

At the beginning of the year, a committee made out each teacher's schedule on cards and placed them on the respective teachers' doors. Names missing over the teachers' doors were replaced.

At Christmas time new members met old members at the Alumni Party held at the home of Mr. Richmond. This year's party drew the largest crowd ever.

In February, they had a Progressive Dinner where everyone went to a different house for each course. Each house represented some foreign country and the food was suggestive of that country.

In a May assembly, students from the Junior and Senior Classes were inducted.

QUILL AND SCROLL

Quill and Scroll was the only society with its entire membership made up of representatives from the BLUE AND GRAY, the Penman, and Crossed Sabres. Because of Quill and Scroll, more people received personal recognition for their efforts on either the business or editorial staff of a publication.

As the International Honorary Society for High School Journalists, Quill and Scroll started the school year with only five members. In the fall, students were selected from the staffs of the school's publications for their outstanding work. An initiation was held at the home of Mrs. Councell, where new members were told the basis of their selection. With their induction they automatically became subscribers to the Quill and Scroll Magazine, which provided useful information on different types of publications.

Meetings were held every other Tuesday morning. At one meeting, a '49 W-L grad told of his experiences on a local newspaper. One rainy morning, the group trudged over to the print shop. There they were introduced to the different kinds of type and their uses in different forms of printed matter. Other speakers, among them a representative from the Sun, were invited to the meetings.

ELOS

Students were taken into Elos twice this year in recognition of their talents in speech, writing, or dramatics. At an Elos Assembly, where new members were announced, former members of the Society were asked to speak.

In the Awards Assembly Elos presented six plaques.

Serving as Washington-Lee's Society of Literary Endeavor, Elos went from one project to another all year. Its members challenged talented writers to a short story contest and offered one of the famous Elos plaques to the winner. Several times, Elos members ushered for the Barter Theater plays which were presented in the school's auditorium and were open to the public.

PLAY

Family listens intently to Mr. Hyde

The numerous talents of Elos were displayed to advantage in this year's play, John Van Druten's I Remember Mama, under the expert direction of Mr. R. Campbell. Jobs of acting, props, advertising, and just plain will power, were equally and cheerfully divided among Elos members. The heart warming story of a practical Norwegian woman and her likable family produced a fitting background for one of the major dramatic successes of the year.

The Editorial Staff spent many breathless moments this year trying to meet the dreaded "deadline." They spent a few weeks during the summer discussing themes and selecting a cover while the Business Staff started their campaign for getting ads.

After school started, the staff began drawing up plans for the "dummy." Students began going from room to room urging that everyone buy an annual. Pictures were taken, personals written, and activities compiled. The typists soon found themselves swamped with work. Added to the occasional loss of a picture, identifications had to be made and spelling checked. The printer was kept posted by letters and his own visits to the school.

There was a slight intermission during exams. Then the staff started noticing the days left before the "deadline." Outsiders dared not enter 111 where the annual's secrets might be revealed. The big things were near completion, but the tedious work still remained. There were the numbering of cuts, re-checking of copy, and unexpected things happening at the last moment.

But on February 10th the printer came. The staff watched him leave with the "dummy," the pictures and copy, and their headaches turned to a mutual feeling of pride.

SABRES

Every other Tuesday found students busy reading their Crossed Sabres. That same day, teachers had a hard time keeping the attention of their classes, since there were always those with their noses buried in the newspaper, who just had to finish reading the sports or gossip column. But through it all, everyone looked forward to the paper more and more. An occasional "Where's the paper this week?" was heard whenever the staff saw fit to skip more than two weeks between issues.

But backstage the staff was confronted with a bi-monthly deadline. They had to line up pictures in keeping with their current features and then track down the photographer. Careful check was kept on the latest gossip, and everyone was in hopes it wouldn't change before the paper appeared. The Sports Editors were frequently seen dashing around during the games. In fact the whole staff kept at a pretty steady pace all year.

The 1950 Staff succeeded in presenting the best Turkey Hop ever given at W-L. And it gave a lift to W-Lites who had seen their football team defeated by G. W. that morning.

"Will these deadlines ever end?"

Of course there were numerous reporters who were given permanent assignments. The News Editor sometimes found herself writing last minute articles or rushing around trying to find a helper. But the newspaper always managed to come out with its accurate coverage of the activities in and around the school.

Penman goes to press and how!

Last minute deadlines found the Penman staff hard at work producing three magazines this year. Fall, winter, and spring editions were sold to students in their homerooms and parents at various night meetings in the school. Informality characterized the staff as they spent all of New Year's Day typing and checking copy for errors. Contributing editors were expected to write three pieces of work during the year. Anyone could submit poems, essays, or stories to the staff by whom they would be criticized, accepted, or rejected.

STAFF

The Business Staff had a hard time keeping ahead of expenses, and various money raising campaigns were necessary. Students were frequently stopped in the halls and presented with a sales talk concerning the literary qualities of the Penman. If these students dared resist, they were cornered in some remote part of the building. Then an even stronger sales talk began, and a Penman was usually sold.

Each edition of the magazine was attractive. The same cover design was used for each edition, but in a color symbolic of the season. Unusual arrangements of copy met the eyes of enthusiastic readers. Some students known as the understaff were taught the fundamentals of magazine work in preparation for next year's Penman.

Formed when the United Nations Youth Club and the Spanish Club united, the International Club carried on correspondence with the youth of foreign lands, had foreign speakers, and sent CARE packages overseas.

The Sophmatic Club presented two one act plays in Sophomore assemblies. This year the club was more active, as a whole, than in past years.

The Junior Dramatic Club promoted the interest of its members in the field of dramatics. They presented a one act play entitled "The White Phantom" during a fall assembly. Directing, make up, scenery, pantomimes and other related subjects were covered as phases of dramatics.

George Washington University. The Procon Club sent ten delegates. At these conferences political elections were held. This was one of the few times that Washington-Lee and George Washington High Schools worked together instead of being the accustomed rivals. Every week the club held round table discussions. They prepared two assembly programs, during one of which they discussed a student court in cooperation with the Student Government. During the other assembly they discussed with George Washington the H-Bomb. Discussions were carried on with the Debate Clubs of other schools on various topics such as race segregation and civil rights. One of the Procon Club's activities this year was a radio program in February during which they discussed Brotherhood Week. The Procon Club has progressed greatly during the past year and W-L is proud of its activities.

BIBLE CLUB

Students were drawn to the interesting Wednesday meetings of the Bible Club where genuine warmth and friendship could always be found. Along with serious discussions there was plenty of time for light social activities. A club project was the collection of toys for needy children.

A Bible Club assembly was presented for the tenth grade. The purpose of the club was presented, and one of the members spoke on "What the Club Has Meant to Me."

At Christmas time a party was combined with caroling. Various outdoor socials were held through-

YMCA ORGANIZATIONS

As the school and community grew so did the club. At W-L this year there were six chapters of the Hi and Tri-Hi-Y. The two new chapters were Gamma and Delta. Their purpose was "To create, maintain and extend throughout the home, school and community high standards of Christian character." The chapters had their individual activities as well as group activities. The Tri-Hi-Y dance was a big affair, in which all the chapters participated. The spring conference was the highlight of the year. The Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y chapters from the Washington area met for an all-day conference where there were discussion groups, sports, games, dinner, and then a dance. The Washington-Lee Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y chapters finished the year with a joint party held at the Arlington Y. M. C. A.

Alpha Hi-Y had a permanent project of checking in the busses in the morning. Beta Hi-Y had a Christmas project of collecting food for the needy and also helped in the shrubbery campaign. They won fame by winning the Metropolitan Hi-Y Basketball Championship.

The Alpha, Beta, Gamma, and Delta Tri-Hi-Y chapters all worked together in decorating the cafeteria and halls for Christmas. Alpha and Beta made plans for their annual basketball tournament, sold Christmas seals, and collected food for needy families. The Alpha chapter corresponded with high school girls in England. Every day Gamma chapter sent a quart of milk to some needy family and also repaired toys for the use of underprivileged children.

The Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y chapters here at W-L were very active and membership was considered a privilege.

PEP CLUB

"Rah! Rah!" Cheers started by the Pep Club stimulated fans at all the games. The Club was organized in the fall of 1949. Its purpose was to promote the interest of members of the student body in the school's sports and to offer the teams moral and financial support. A dance was held in January to help raise money for the purpose of buying a new shell for the rowing crew. Enough money was raised to buy W-L letters for the cheerleaders and to pay for their transportation to many of the games played away from home. One of their most spectacular events of the year took place at a night football game last fall; during the half-time members of the Club, carrying large flares, formed the letters "W" and "L" on the football field. At the traditional game between George Washington and Washington-Lee the Pep Club took part in the half-time ceremonies. Three cheers for the Pep Club for helping to make 1949-50 one of the best years for everyone at W-L!

As a club for students interested in the various fields of science, the Junior Academy of Science was organized this year. When they had divided the club into two parts, Mr. Spencer took the biological section while Mr. Hall was in charge of the physical sciences. Although there was a great deal of organizing to be done, the group found time to participate in a number of activities. These included the showing of several sets of slides. One particular set illustrated the usefulness of the Periodic Chart in the field of Chemistry.

The biological section listened to speeches given by eminent biologists. Both groups planned field trips where most of their work was accomplished. Some of their visits included the museums, aquarium, and botanical gardens. A major project was an attempt to breed neon tetras.

In charge of school movies, the Service Club did a tremendous amount of work throughout the year. In addition they managed the stage equipment for most of the programs conducted in the auditorium.

Every Monday afternoon Bowling Club members clampered down to the bowling alleys. During occasional intermissions between strikes, they kept themselves filled with hot dogs, cokes and potato chips. The two highest teams participated in the championship tournament sponsored by the American Junior Bowling Congress.

Representing the outstanding girl athletes of the school, the Monogram Club sold snacks during the games. With the money obtained they bought girls' athletic equipment.

Meeting every Wednesday night, the W-L Club was made up of letter men selected by previous members. At the end of the year the club awarded symbolic gold balls to the graduating Seniors who had participated in sports.

ORCHESTRA

"Practice makes perfect" and the members of the orchestra proved it this year. With forty new members and Mr. Rubenstein as their new director, they practiced first period every day. The small groups which were the string quartet, clarinet quartet, and string ensemble, gave several individual performances.

Students filed into the auditorium for the Christmas assembly while listening to the music of their own orchestra. The orchestra even performed for the Junior Highs. Twelve of the members, under the direction of Mr. Rubenstein, made the All State Band.

The big event of the year was the State Music Festival at Harrisonburg where students combined fun and work. In all its activities the orchestra proved to be a definite asset to the school.

DISTRIBUTORS CLUB

The Distributive Education Club, a national organization, is united by the slogan, "Fitting students for life." Each member of the Club worked part time for a business in Washington or Arlington. The purpose of the organization was the development of leadership and citizenship. The high spots of the year were their annual fashion show, the employee-employer banquet, which was made up of club members and their employers, and the Valentine Dance. At the Valentine Dance the King and the Queen of Hearts were crowned.

The Club met on Tuesdays during the day, at which time they had business men and women as guest speakers. They competed with several schools in northern Virginia for the privilege of going to the State Conference and from there to the National Conference on Retail Sales. The choice was based on a speech the contestants

The Art Club met before school with the purpose of giving students unable to take art regularly an opportunity to work on pictures. Their activities included drawing for The Star contest and Jelleff's Scholastic Art contest.

The purpose of the Creative Writing Club was twofold: It wished to promote interest in reading and writing, and encourage writing for school publications. The meetings were spent in discussing selections, style, and techniques employed in the writing of certain selections.

The Chorus, which practiced the fifth period this year, had the motto that "practice makes perfect." Among their many activities were caroling during Christmas and doing some competitive work with other schools at Harrisonburg, Virginia.

The French Club was organized to stimulate interest in French and the French people. Their activities this year included visits to a French church, a Mardi Gras, and the showing of a series of slides.

CHOIR

MADRIGALS

Several days after the Choir members had been picked, a small group of twelve was chosen. The "Mads," as they were dubbed, made many more performances including banquets and church during the year than the choir, meetings. An outstanding moment in the spring was the singing at the Sunrise Service at National Memorial Park on Easter Sunday by the Madrigals. They enjoyed early morning programs with Bill Herson at least twice this year, but early morning rehearsals on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday were what made the success of the group.

CADET CORPS

Returning this year the cadets found they had a new sponsor. Known as the P. M. S. and T. (Professor of Military Science and Tactics), he was Captain H. R. Smith, who helped them through a successful corps year. October 8 marked the opening of the Freeway, and the W-L cadet corps was on hand to help put the parade over in a big way. The fall also found the school with a new flag, the result of two years of determined insistence by the cadets.

As usual the cadets ushered at the football games and with pride watched their band grow to forty-five pieces under the able direction of Mr. Harold Rubenstein. The pep rallies and parades were greatly improved by the Cadet Band and they have even bigger plans for the future.

The very rainy fall season would have thrown a damper on the corps had it not been for the training films and interesting talks given by officers from Fort Meyer. The rare clear days found the cadets, both girls and boys, on the rifle range boosting their marksmanship with their ".22's."

As the cold weather set in, the corps continued to drill — what they called monkey drills — and marched shivering in review for the army inspections. The last two weeks in January brought a welcome change with a series of special lectures. "Military Discipline and Courtesy," "Soldier With Arms," "Soldier Without Arms," "Squad and Platoon Drill," and "First Aid" were among the talks presented by Captain Smith and several members of the corps.

All through the year the boys' and girls' crack squads faithfully drilled in the early hours of the morning. Their efforts were rewarded by the ovations they received at the football games, and drills at which they represented the entire corps. It wasn't "all work and no play," though, for the parties the crack squads had were by no means "dull!" This year, too, they inaugurated monthly afternoon get-togethers — featuring dancing to "Re Cording's" orchestra, enjoying the clever skits and monologues presented by various talented cadets and of course devouring the refreshments that definitely added to the parties.

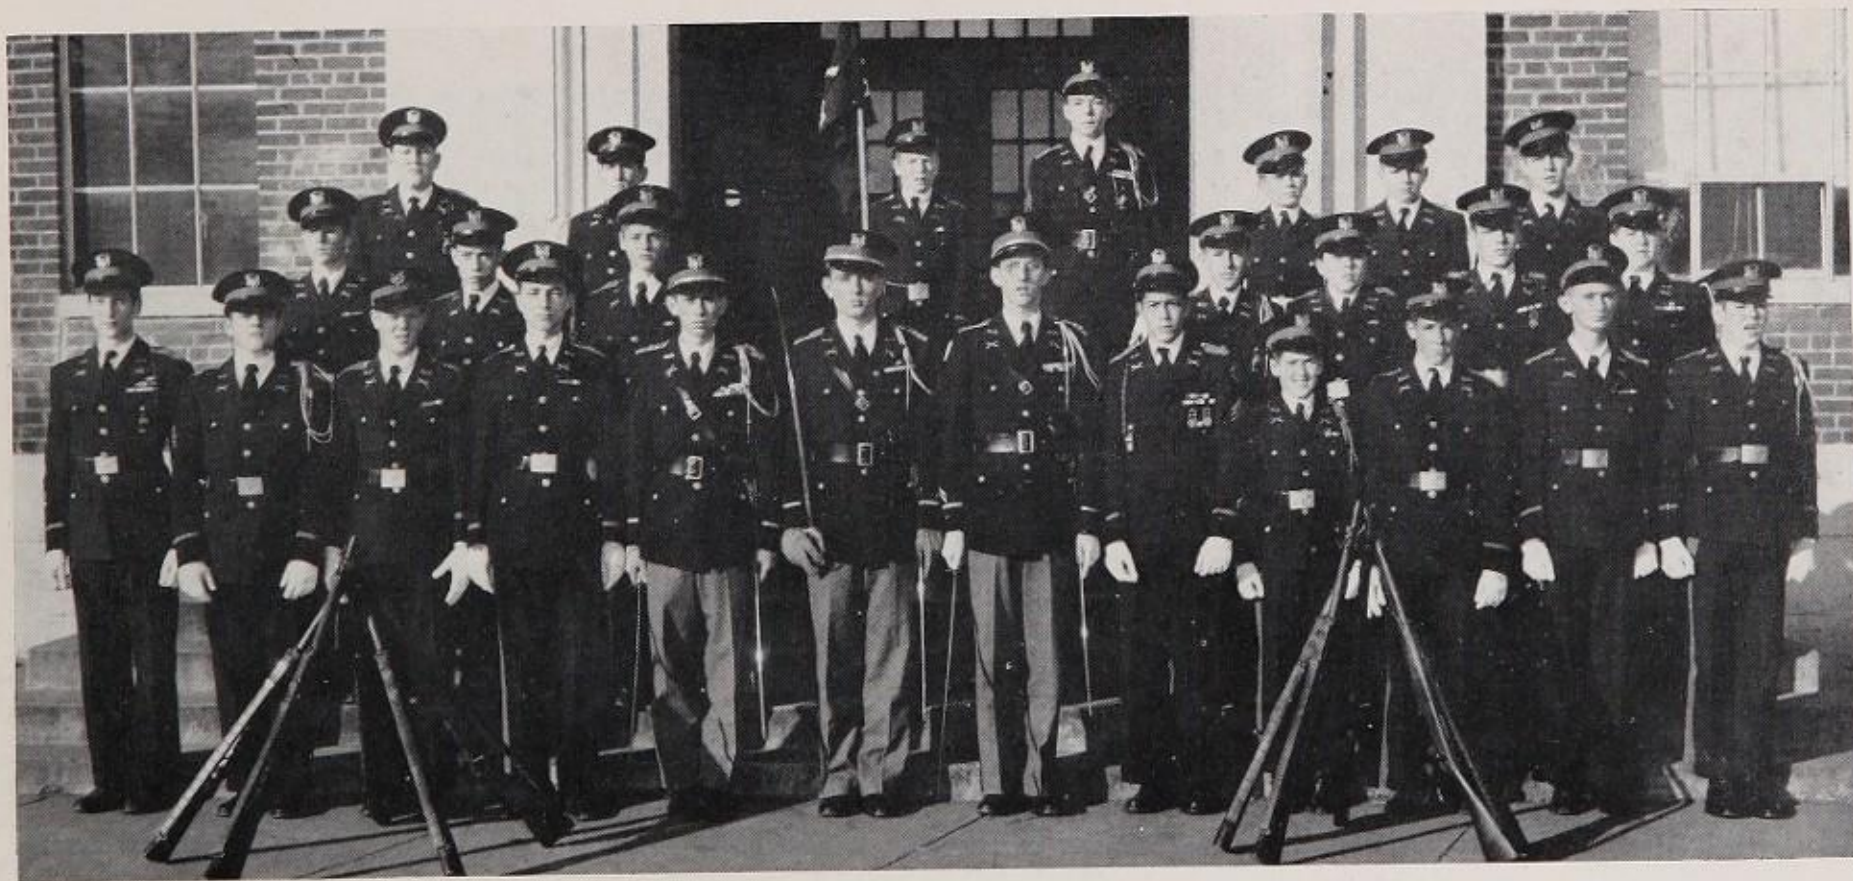

Ah the spring! It finally came with the Regimental Ball ushering it in, and was it wonderful!—dancing to such heavenly music — and the boys looking so smooth in their blue uniforms, just like a formal affair at a military academy. But like all good things it was over too soon and after a gay round of the Hot Shoppes, they staggered wearily home to bed.

The Sadie Williams and Sam Browne Clubs continued full swing carrying on the tradition the names suggested. For the non-commissioned cadets the Chevrons Club provided an outlet for their opinions concerning the future plans of the corps and its many problems. These clubs met approximately once every two weeks to hash over the current crises which arose during the preceding weeks.

One of the greatest events of the year was the big Apple Blossom Festival. The cadets traveled the seventy miles to Winchester by bus and arrived to find the city gaily decked and swarming with Hollywood celebrities and cadets in all the uniforms of Virginia's prep and high schools. It was warm and sticky, and standing in formation for two hours before the parade began caused more than one person to faint. The previous day the coronation of the queen by one of the celebrities had set the holiday mood. The six mile parade passed in review for all the brass hats and big tops who seemed to have converged on the city. Our cadets received due praise and were considered top ranking along with the best preparatory and military schools of the state. The remainder of the afternoon was spent at the Apple Blossom Fair, enjoying the entertainments, playing the concessions, and consuming the usual popcorn and peanuts. They arrived home at eleven that night, thoroughly exhausted and a little

As the year drew to a close, the corps made their last formal appearance in a much-awaited Founder's Day. It was their day to shine and reap the well-earned rewards of a hard spent year. The whole corps, including the band and numbering close to two hundred, marched in review for the entire school that had been assembled in the stadium. Top brass were there from the army bases to present awards to the most outstanding girl and boy cadet and the best drilled non-commissioned officer. Commissions were given and special attendance ribbons awarded. As they marched off the field to the martial band music, more than one realized, with a sinking heart, that they had reached the end of their corps career. They did have a chance, though, to present themselves in uniform to usher at the graduation exercises. Their uniforms stood out among the white gowns as a symbol of the corps, a truly outstanding group of Washington-Lee students.

Football history was once again made at W-L. This year's Little Generals were unfortunate in that five of the ten games were decided by one point, two losses and three ties. W-L beat Fort Hill of Cumberland, Devitt Prep, Fairfax, and Western. In exciting games they tied Central, St. Johns, and Lane High. Jefferson of Roanoke and Eastern beat us. The George Washing-

"Another seven period day?" "You bet!"—the cheerleaders were determined to have an assembly of student body to let the teams know their fellow students were behind them. Striving to make '49-'50 W-L's peppiest year, the cheerleaders urged sports' fans to keep those cheers alive. And they even kept behind the teams away from home. The football team never left without their "boosters," and members of the basketball team found themselves well represented with cheers at G. W. and their tournament at Maryland.

Of course the parade to the G. W. football game will probably stick in the heart of every W-Lite for years to come. With the team and cheerleaders in front, the whole procession headed for the long awaited game. Despite the heartbreaking results, players, cheerleaders, and fans alike faced the loss with praiseworthy sportsmanship.

The junior varsity continued stacking up "wins" this year. However they broke their winning streak of 34 games when they lost to G. W. by 7 points. In another game they kept G. W. from scoring and failed to score themselves. In both games with the J. V., Blair was unable to score.

GIRLS' RIFLE TEAM

The girls, who first organized their team this year, had a tough time in that they could find only boys' teams with which to compete. They appeared in four matches, winning one and losing three. Although the girl sharpshooters were disappointed in not having proper competition this year, they hoped other schools might organize girls' teams for future matches with W-L.

SOFTBALL

Just as everyone was getting spring fever, the softball team took steps in the opposite direction and started their grueling practice sessions. Tryouts and assigning of positions kept the coach busy as balls whizzed in every direction. Batting, catching, running, and throwing kept team members going. The team faced a number of opponents and went back for a second game with each of them. They batted and fielded against Bladensburg, Hyattsville, Falls Church, Fairfax, Mount Vernon and George Washington.

Like many of W-L's teams, the softball team benefitted by the return of some of last year's stars.

Basketball...

Under their new coach, John Rothrock, the varsity team managed to make the best varsity basketball record in the school's history. The junior varsity consisted mainly of sophomores. Despite the early loss of their star player, they saw a good season.

The varsity crew started the 1950 season with a race against the Plebes of Annapolis and George Washington High School on April 8th at Annapolis. They scheduled a race for each week until May 20th, when the Stotesbury Cup Regatta was held.

After their national triumph at Detroit last year, the crew found themselves missing only two members of the original and championship crew of W-L. This year's crew featured four-oared shells and a two-oared shell in addition to the pair of eight-oared shells. Competitive races were also arranged for the smaller shells. Next year's team will lose five of their crew members. They are Kado Beacham, Mike Miller, Paul Yager, Pete Sparhawk, Coxswain Dick McCombs.

The new shell, named "Cinderella," was christened at the first home race by Mary Florance, who sold the most Christmas trees for the benefit of the rowing crew.

Diamond Boys...

Two down, one to go.

In the dust and hotness of the approaching summer, the Baseball Squad experienced, along with a lot of work, an exciting season. Because of the new lights most of the games were played at night which helped to conquer the heat of the day a little. The team was always kept busy trying to keep up with last year's fame winning team, and they were glad to have some of last year's outstanding players besides some expert new ones.

Dear Diary:

What a day this has been! I thought I'd never find a suit that pleased me. But Joyce Springer, girl MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED, tipped me off to Lillian Bause, and it was the answer to a dream. In fact, we went there together. Joyce bought that suit she's wearing, and I found a perfect one for my trip. The service was cordial and efficient, and you can see that no one hurried us out. We speculated on clothes for future occasions and found ourselves surrounded by a variety of quality women's clothes for ALL occasions. After quite some time we left laden with packages and convinced that we'd soon return.

LILLIAN BAUSE

ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA

I saw our MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED boy, Henry Renz, in Sidney R. Johnston's today. He's certainly off to a good start dealing with such a dependable contractor. I wonder what Henry's having done! Well, whatever it is, there's no doubt that he'll be pleased with the work. Sidney R. Johnston's place of business is one of the most modern in Arlington. All his service is noted for its promptness and completeness. I think I'll jot down his number just in case I need it for future reference. Let me see. Oh, here it is—Oxford 2915.

There's been a lot of commotion around school about the superlatives this week, and everyone has been wondering whom the school considers BEST LOOKING. Of course I know it's Connie Mason. Along with Connie's charming beauty, that orchid she's been wearing from Comley's Florist has caught everyone's eye. Yes, flowers are definitely an asset anywhere. Plants make wonderful presents any time of the year, and every girl thrills over a corsage. Flowers introduce a liveness. The freshness and beauty of the flowers sold at Comley's are products of quick and careful service. I think I'll give the boys a little suggestion on where to get their corsages for the Senior Prom.

ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA

Speaking of superlatives, Joe Culp was voted none other than the BEST LOOKING boy at Washington-Lee High School. Of course, being well dressed like Joe makes for good looks. And he certainly can't go wrong with that jacket he has from the Quality Shop. He knows a good suit, and he's certainly familiar with the accessories that dress up a suit. The nice thing about the Quality Shop, Diary, is that while it carries the very best in men's apparel, it still maintains reasonable prices. It not only sounds like a good place for men, but it sounds like a good place for some of these doubtful women to do their Christmas shopping.

Dear Diary:

Whom do you think I saw sitting in the display window of Furniture, Incorporated, this morning? Well, good taste has a lot to do with popularity, and Dickie Dickerson, the MOST POPULAR girl at my school, certainly showed she had it. There she was, relaxing and enjoying one of Furniture, Incorporated's many fine pieces of furniture. It's hard to find good furniture, courteous service, and reasonable prices, but at Furniture, Incorporated, there is excellence in all three. I bet a lot of people have been looking for a dependable furniture store. When they enter the door of Furniture, Incorporated, their search will be doubly rewarded with economical as well as quality furniture.

FURNITURE, Incorporated
2731 Wilson Boulevard
ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA

Brown Pontiac had another distinguished customer not long ago. At least W-Lites said so today when they heard it was their MOST POPULAR boy, Dave Francis. Of course, Pontiac dealers can't help but draw people who know the ropes because they're selling a car that's definitely worthwhile. Yes, for years, Pontiac has stood for dependability and excellent service. You know, Diary, I'm not very far from Brown Pontiac. It's just down there on Wilson Boulevard. I know from their reputation that Brown Pontiac's employees make a special and successful effort to see that their customers are satisfied.

BROWN PONTIAC, Incorporated

Excitement overtook the school when Barbi Sievers, W-L's FRIENDLIEST girl, was seen in Rogers' Jewelry Store trying on a diamond ring. Well, Barbi soon straightened things out by admitting she just loved to try on jewelry and couldn't resist seeing that beautiful diamond on her finger. Truly, that particular jewelry store has a reputation for dealing in the very finest types of jewelry and silver for every occasion. And a lot of people have found a pleasing gift there.

But what I'm hoping, Diary, is that some wise owl tells my parents about Rogers' Jewelry Store and the numerous possibilities for a graduation present.

LEESBURG INN
LEESBURG, VIRGINIA

For comfortable lodgings and delicious meals Leesburg Inn receives frequent reliable recommendations. And Petie McCormick, the school's FRIENDLIEST boy, thinks there's nothing like resting his hand on the mantle piece and having a restful chat. With comfortable chairs and the homey atmosphere of an open fire, guests find themselves welcome with good old Southern hospitality. Of course, I've been told to ask Bill Keesee anything I want to know about the Inn since his father owns it. That's a recommendation in itself with Bill as President of the Senior Class. I'm bound to be in Leesburg sometime. I'll be sure to look up the Inn.

Dear Diary:

I was really swept off my feet to-day, Diary, when I saw that Chevrolet convertible at Kenyon-Peck. It's a beauty as are the other types of cars put out by Chevrolet. Cars for every occasion are sold at Kenyon-Peck. You can guess that some smart person was drawn to one of those convertibles, and it was none other than that MOST INTELLECTUAL W-Lite, Mary Jane Martin. I bet she'd like that very car for a graduation present. Anyway, lots of parents should go down to Kenyon-Peck and see a dependable car at a reasonable price. Then the buying will come naturally for those who just can't seem to make up their minds. No one can deny that Kenyon-Peck offers an excellent car at a modest price.

It looks like Southern Office Supply must carry the very best in school supplies because the MOST INTELLECTUAL boy, John Laughlin, was in there buying a dictionary just to-day. Yes, Southern Office Supply is definitely the place to go for stationary, school supplies, and anything a good desk requires to be complete. A good selection of Hallmark cards can always be found there along with cordial service that enables a customer to feel he is being offered the best in the office supply line. As soon as possible I'm heading for Southern Office Supply to get a pen and some personalized stationery to use at college.

SOUTHERN OFFICE SUPPLY

ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA

Well, our BEST SPORT, Betty Jean Hill, was appointed to get the groceries for her folks today. She found it an easy job at Yeatman's Market where everything was neatly and systematically arranged. There wasn't any "going across the street for bread" because Yeatman's Market had everything right there. That supply of canned goods Betty Jean chose from, proves that a good stock was and still is kept on hand for last minute shoppers. Courteous service adds to the efficiency of any store, and Yeatman's Market's excellence in both explains its ability to keep, as well as increase, its regular customers. I think I'll give some housewives a tip on keeping their family's appetites satisfied.

Diary, I'm really wondering what makes a business click. Of course a good product is the foremost attraction and Greenwood Sales and Service certainly has that when they sell the Hudson. But there must be something else. Let's see. Lurty Houff, Washington-Lee's BEST SPORT, was down there only yesterday. He must know Greenwood Sales and Service excels in dependability especially when servicing his car. Yes, everyone knows Greenwood Sales and Service sells the renowned Hudson. Their experience is shown by the fine work and polite manners of its employees. My advice is "Buy a Hudson" at Greenwood Sales and Service.

Dear Diary:

Ah! Flowers from Conklyn's. What an occasion. Betsey Bean, the MOST TALENTED girl at Washington-Lee, looked pleased and excited over a lovely basket of flowers from that same florist. Lots of the fellows say they wouldn't think of buying corsages for "that special girl" from anyone but Conklyn's. And that's certainly a sign of the very best in flowers. And, Diary, what could be more refreshing than a newly arranged bowl of flowers to cheer up the home all year 'round? Conklyn's is always ready to make that date a big success or keep a friend's home cheery with nature's best beauties.

I was almost in an awful predicament today. I neglected to notice the gas gauge until it was reading "empty." Boy! I just made it to Craig's Service Station where my car received immediate attention. Our MOST TALENTED boy, Dick Gall, was driving in just as I left. Most school kids know what's what when it comes to servicing a car, and it's amazing how many head for Craig's. There, car owners will always find their car needs with Esso's dependable products — tubes, batteries, and tires. There's no waiting around for hours. The service is not only prompt but completely trustworthy.

CRAIG'S SERVICE STATION
Glebe Road and Washington Boulevard
ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA

Did someone mention best-all-around today? Well, Pat Frankhouser, our BEST-ALL-AROUND girl, must have been mixed up in that somewhere, Diary. I do remember seeing her down at J. W. Ayers 5 and 10 the other day. That's the place where just about everything can be found—and at reasonable prices. The service is quick and courteous and that makes a difference in any store. I think I'll take a shopping bag and get lots of my shopping done at one time down at Ayers 5 and 10. While I'm there I won't forget some of their famous frozen custard.

Bill Keesee, BEST-ALL-AROUND boy, was taken on quite a tour of Strayer College not long ago. Former W-Lites explained to him exactly what Strayer had to offer. "We even have the Strayer College of Accountancy which offers courses in Business Administration and Accounting." Along with excellent C. P. A. preparation, Strayer confers the B.C.S. and M.C.S. degrees. After training them, Strayer helps its graduates secure positions in varied and interesting fields. Every day Strayer graduates are finding themselves equipped to meet the demands of their jobs. Students who are interested in successful careers in secretarial work, as well as other fields, should look into and take advantage of the opportunities offered at Strayer College.

HARRISON'S SERVICE STATION
4601 North Washington Boulevard
ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA

Dear Diary:

I have finally discovered who our school's WITTIEST boy is. It's Bob Lynch. He was down at Harrison's Service Station the other day practicing his wit on one of the employees and having his car serviced at the same time. Before he knew it, his car was ready to go and the rest of his jokes had to wait until next time. In a short time, his car's tires, oil, and water had been carefully checked, the windshield cleaned and the gas tank filled. There aren't any "slow pokes" at Harrison's. They don't believe in keeping people waiting.

What a jewelry fiend that WITTIEST girl, Ginger Carter, is! She can't seem to keep away from Balfour's. Frankly though, I don't blame her. I have a little trouble myself. It's such an inviting store with everyone so willing to help. Most of us found that out when we went down to get our school rings. Balfour's has the best in the silver and jewelry line. It's conveniently located in downtown Washington on F Street. If anyone ever asks me where to order club pins, rings, or jewelry in general, I'm putting in a good word for Balfour's. It certainly has given W-L students excellent service.

L. G. BALFOUR COMPANY
1319 F. Street N. W.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Our MOST ATHLETIC boy, Bruce Hillenbrand, is especially smart when it comes to dealing with the right people. How do I know, Diary? Simple—he's on to Westmont Haberdashery where men are finding better buys everyday. Bruce found a wallet that he liked along with countless other men's things. Hats, coats, shoes, and all types of men's clothing are found reasonably priced at the Westmont Haberdashery. I know some of the fellows will be glad to hear it's a good place to get their tux for the Senior Prom. They surely want the very best for the big event.

Oh! how I'd love a new Hudson, Diary. On the way to lunch I caught a glimpse of Pat Swain, MOST ATHLETIC girl of the school, at Hawkins Motor Company. She seemed pretty close to buying one herself; at any rate she went to the right place. Hawkins Motor is an authorized Hudson dealer with a convenient location on Columbia Pike. They're noted for quick service at all times. Well, maybe I'm not quite ready to buy a Hudson, but there's no reason why I can't tell my parents to drop by Hawkins Motor Company just in case.

Dear Diary:

I'm telling you that Jane Tawes really knows her stuff! Why she sold more ads than anyone else on the staff. And she showed some more good sense today when she was trying on that evening dress at Helen Waldron's. There's a store that has the very finest quality of women's clothes. The prices aren't out of range either. A lot of smarties have already been down there to buy their prom dresses before the last minute rush. Come to think of it, Diary, I better get down there myself. I always enjoy the cordial atmosphere, quick service, and fine buys offered everyone there.

HELEN WALDRON
2830 Wilson Boulevard
ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA

Doris Payne looked quite pleased with her father's service at Payne & Rice Esso Station. She's certainly not the only one who benefits from the prompt and cordial service at Payne & Rice. Diary, more people every day are finding that their cars receive better and more dependable service there. Located on Wilson Boulevard and Fort Meyer Drive, it surely is convenient for Arlingtonians as well as visitors. I wonder just how many cars stop in there each day? One thing is certain: every motorist leaves there with his car expertly serviced. What better recommendation could a service station have?

Dear Diary:

In closing for now I'm going to be sure and mention our Annual's superb professional photographer, Mr. Stuckey. He and his staff have been completely cooperative in their work for the 1950 BLUE AND GRAY. Not only have they given the Annual their best, but they've doubled up in order to have everything done on time. Mr. Stuckey offers the very best in photography for very reasonable prices with amazingly prompt service. I, for one, am planning to take advantage of his excellent work in the future as well as the present.
